CLARK CLIFFORD TO HEAD INTELLIGENCE ADVISERS

WASHINGTON, April 24 (AP)

President Kennedy moved Clark Clifford up to chairman of the Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board yesterday. The board conducts a continuing review and assessment of all foreign intelligence activities of the Government.

Clifford, a former St. Louisan and once special counsel to former President Harry S. Truman, takes over his new duties today from James R. Killian, who has resigned.

Clifford, a Washington attorney, was Mr. Kennedy's liaison man with the Eisenhower Administration when Mr. Kennedy was President-elect. He has been a member of the intelligence board since its establishment in May 1961. Mr. Kennedy has not named a successor to fill the vacancy on the board.
